Your Recommended Action = BUY, HOLD, SELL, WAIT

Your Recommended Action Details – The Home Depot stays in my watchlist as a possible investment, if :
1. The share price pattern develops into a very predictable "Cup with Handle" shape with a strong, high volume break out above all time high's. This would indicate to me that the dividend plus anticipated growth is attracting institutional participation, with possible share price appreciation ahead. 2. The overall market again melts-down (unlikely) and HD shares with it, resulting in the shares being again much cheaper to buy. 3. Something else happens that really attracts me to the shares. This could be very strong growth in homebuilding data..

Otherwise, shares of Home Depot at $240/share are simply too expensive for me for the expected growth rate ahead.
